Vanity Luring Girls to Steroids

TRENTON, N.J. | An alarming number of American girls, some as young as 9, are using bodybuilding steroids — not necessarily to get an edge on the playing field, but to get the toned, sculpted look of models and movie stars, experts say.

Girls are getting their hands on the same dangerous testosterone pills, shots and creams that have created a scandal in major league baseball and other sports.

Overall, up to about 5 percent of high school girls and 7 percent of middle-school girls admit trying anabolic steroids at least once, with use rising steadily since 1991, various government and university studies have shown.

Researchers say that most girls are using steroids to get bigger and stronger on the playing field. But plenty of other girls are using steroids to give themselves a slightly muscular look, they say.

"With young women, you see them using it more as a weight control and bodyfat reduction" method, said Jeff Hoerger, who runs the staff counseling program at Rutgers University. (AP)

Bush to Saudis: More Oil

President urges production increase to lower gas prices

CRAWFORD, TEXAS | President Bush prodded Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince Abdullah on Monday to help curb skyrocketing oil prices, and the White House expressed hope that the kingdom's plans would ease U.S. gasoline prices that have shot above $2.20 a gallon.

"A high oil price will damage markets and he knows that," Bush said of Abdullah, the de facto leader of the desert kingdom.

Saudi Arabia has outlined a plan to increase production capacity to 12.5 million barrels a day by 2009 from the current 11 million limit. Saudi Arabia now pumps about 9.5 million barrels daily. If necessary, Saudi Arabia says it will eventually develop a capacity of 15 million barrels a day.

Abdullah

Other pressing issues, including terrorism, prospects for peace between the Israelis and Palestinians and democratic change in the Middle East filled the leaders' meeting and discussion over lunch. They agreed to set up a high-level committee, headed by Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice and the Saudi foreign minister, to work on strategic issues.

Spreading democracy is a second-term goal that could affect Bush's legacy, yet high gas prices are a drag on his popularity right now. A recent Associated Press-AOL poll found the public giving the president low marks for his handling of energy problems, with 62 percent saying they disapproved. DEB REICHMANN (AP)

SUCKERS

15BR, 10BA, Great For World Leaders

Investigators in India are looking into a report that a U.S. businessman was fraudulently "sold" the Prime Minister's house in New Delhi, the Hindustan Times reported. The residence had been for sale on the Internet, where it was listed as a "huge sprawling mansion" with "24x7 running water and electricity," complete with photographs. After six months of negotiations, John Hammond reportedly coughed up more than $800,000 for the bogus property. After receiving the deed, he showed up in New Delhi on March 31 to set up an office in the house, only to find that he had been swindled. (EXPRESS)

Pro-Bar-Fight Activists Pleased

British activists promoting "International TV Turnoff Week" plan to employ a device that turns off any TV within 22 feet, the Press Association reported. The group, White Dot, will use the $15 "TV-B-Gone" in pubs and cafes as part of its campaign, which begins Monday. After the tube is off, members will be "leaving information or asking people, 'I just turned off the television. Did you notice?'" said organizer David Burke. The group may be idealistic, but they're not stupid: Burke said they have no plans to turn off TVs showing soccer matches. (EXPRESS)

It apparently hasn't hurt his career: Eekhof is in talks with several firms about jobs. (AP)

Poll: Majority Oppose Rule Change

New Post-ABC survey shows views on battle brewing over filibusters

As the Senate moves toward a major confrontation over judicial appointments, a strong majority of Americans oppose changing the rules to make it easier for Republican leaders to win confirmation of President Bush's court nominees, according to the latest Washington Post-ABC News Poll.

GOP leaders are threatening a rules change to prohibit the use of filibusters to block judicial nominees and have stepped up their criticism of the Democrats for using the tactic on some of Bush's nominees to the federal appellate courts.

But by a 2-1 margin, the public rejected easing Senate rules in a way that would make it harder for Democratic senators to prevent final action on Bush's nominees.

The wide ranging survey also recorded a precipitous decline in support for the centerpiece of Bush's Social Security plan — private or personal accounts — despite the fact that the president and other administration officials have been stumping the country to mobilize support. The Post-ABC poll found that a bare majority — 51 percent — now oppose such accounts while 45 percent support them.

The poll also registered a drop in key Bush performance ratings and continuing concerns about U.S. involvement in Iraq.

Four in 10 say that House Majority Leader Tom DeLay, R-Texas, under fire for alleged ethics violations, should resign his leadership post while a third of the public said he should remain in his job.

Among the 36 percent who say they have been following the allegations against DeLay, nearly two in three say DeLay should step down.

A total of 1,007 randomly selected adults were interviewed April 21-24 for the poll. RICHARD MORIN AND DAN BALZ (THE WASHINGTON POST)

U.S. Arrests Reputed Afghan Drug Smuggler

NEW YORK | A reputed Afghan drug lord who authorities say operated with the protection of the Taliban has been captured and faces charges that he tried to smuggle more than $50 million worth of heroin into the United States, authorities said.

Bashir Noorzai, who is on the U.S. list of most-wanted drug kingpins, was ordered held without bail at his initial court appearance. If convicted, he could face a maximum sentence of life in prison.

The full circumstances of Noorzai's capture were not made public. Prosecutor Boyd Johnson told a judge that Drug Enforcement Administration agents arrested the defendant Saturday in New York, but he did not elaborate.

Prosecutors say the smuggling attempt involved about 1,100 pounds of heroin.

U.S. Attorney David Kelley said that between 1990 and 2004, the defendant and his organization "provided demolitions, weapons and manpower to the Taliban."

"In exchange, the Taliban allowed Noorzai's business to flourish," he said. TOM HAYS (AP)

WARRENTON, GA. | Two toddlers who were reported missing from their home over the weekend were found dead in an algae-covered sewage pond a few hundred yards away Monday after a two-day search.

The cause of death was not immediately disclosed, and Georgia Bureau of Investigation spokesman John Bankhead said it was not known whether the youngsters were the victims of foul play. Autopsies were planned.

Nicole Payne, 2, and her brother, Jonah, 3, were reported missing on Saturday from their lakeside house about 100 miles east of Atlanta. The children's mother called authorities to report that the toddlers vanished after she went into another room.

Up to 100 law enforcement officers searched for the youngsters, using heat-seeking devices, infrared radar and cadaver dogs. (AP)

Court to Hear Loan Appeal

Justices to weigh seizing Social Security to repay student debts

WASHINGTON | The Supreme Court said Monday it will consider whether the federal government can seize a person's Social Security payments to pay off student loan debts that are at least a decade old.

Justices agreed to hear an appeal by James Lockhart, a disabled man who says he needs his monthly check to pay for food and medication.

The case hinges on a pair of congressional statutes that send mixed messages as to whether Social Security payments are shielded: the Debt Collection Act and the Higher Education Act, or HEA.

When Congress passed the HEA in 1991, it eliminated the 10-year time limit on the government's right to seek repayment on defaulted student loans by seizing payments to individuals.

However, the Debt Collection Act created an exception to that rule for Social Security payments. Congress eventually amended that law to allow the seizure of Social Security payments, but then left intact a provision that continued to set a 10-year time limit.

Billions of dollars are at stake. There is nearly $7 billion in delinquent student loan debt, half of which is more than 10 years old, according to the Bush administration's court filing. HOPE YEN (AP)

Among other developments at the Supreme Court on Monday:

→ The justices will consider the case of a Pennsylvania woman who slipped on mail delivered to the porch of her home instead of to her mailbox and wants the right to sue the U.S. Postal Service for injuries she suffered.

→ The court declined to consider whether U.S. prisoners of war who say they were tortured during the 1991 Gulf War should collect a $959 million judgment from Iraq. The justices let stand a lower court ruling that threw out the lawsuit. (AP)

CHICAGO | Fourteen reputed Chicago mob figures were indicted Monday on charges of plotting at least 18 murders, including the 1986 slaying of the crime organization's top man in Las Vegas, Tony "The Ant" Spilotro, who was buried alive in a cornfield.

Jackson's Ex-Wife Can Testify in Trial

SANTA MARIA, CALIF. | The judge in Michael Jackson's child molestation trial said Monday he will allow the mother of two of the pop star's children to testify as a prosecution witness.

Prosecutors want Jackson's ex-wife Debbie Rowe to tell jurors that she was compelled to appear on a videotape praising Jackson as a good father and a humanitarian.

Prosecutors say Rowe did the interview under duress, having been told by Jackson associates that if she did not do it she would risk losing her visitation rights with

More than 70 dead, 440 hurt after train slams into a building

AMAGASAKI, JAPAN | The death toll in a train derailment in western Japan rose to 71 early Tuesday, nearly a day after a packed commuter train jumped the tracks and hurtled into an apartment complex in the deadliest Japanese rail accident in four decades. More than 440 were injured.

Investigators focused on whether excessive speed or the actions of the inexperienced, 23-year-old driver caused the crash in an urban area near Amagasaki, about 250 miles west of Tokyo.

The packed seven-car train was carrying 580 passengers when it derailed, plowing through an automobile in its path before slamming into a nine-story apartment complex.

Two of the five derailed cars were

In a rare harsh tone, South Korea on Monday warned North Korea against conducting a nuclear test, and the communist state said it would consider any U.N. sanctions a "declaration of war." ## Election Came Like a 'Guillotine,' Pope Jokes

Pontiff shares thoughts during an appearance with German pilgrims

VATICAN CITY | Pope Benedict XVI said Monday he felt like a "guillotine" was coming down on him when it appeared he might be elected pontiff, saying he prayed to God to be spared but that "evidently this time he didn't listen to me."

Benedict's playfulness during an audience with German pilgrims offered the first insight into what may have been going on in his mind during the secret conclave that elected him leader of the world's 1.1 billion Catholics.

It also underscored that the former Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger — known as the stern German guardian of the Vatican's conservative doctrine — has a sense of humor, knows how to work a crowd and seems to be winning over fans.

Sunnis Drop Cabinet Demand

Leaders had wanted to seat ex-members of Saddam's ruling party

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Sunni Muslim politicians dropped their demand Monday to include former members of Saddam Hussein's party in Iraq's new Cabinet in a bid to get more ministries. Iraq's Sunni minority is believed to be the backbone of the insurgency and many here blame the months-long impasse in forming a new government for a resurgence in violence.

As leaders of Iraq's main Shiite,

Sunni and Kurdish factors continued their backroom wheeling and dealing, Prime Minister-designate Ibrahim al-Jaafari again put off his long-promised Cabinet announcement.

The issue is just one of many obstacles that have bogged down negotiations since Iraqis voted in Jan. 30 parliamentary elections. Most Sunnis stayed away from the vote, either in boycott or out of fear of attacks at the polls.

Al-Jaafari has also had to balance demands by his predecessor, Ayad Allawi, for at least four ministries for his party, including a senior government post. JAMIE TARABAY (AP)

BEIRUT, LEBANON | Syrian intelligence agents abandoned their main headquarters in Lebanon on Monday, leaving the nerve center from which they controlled much of the neighboring country's affairs for 29 years.

With Syria leaving, its Lebanese allies in the security services also were collapsing. Maj. Gen. Jamil Sayyed — often described as the enforcer of Damascus' policy — announced his resignation, and another top security commander left the country with his family.

Only a token Syrian force — about 300 soldiers, compared with a force of 14,000 only two months ago — remains for Tuesday's ceremony to mark the official end of the Syrian presence.

Al Qaeda Suspect In Spain Denies Connection to 9/11

MADRID, SPAIN | The man accused of leading a Spanish al Qaeda cell denied charges he helped organize the Sept. 11 attacks by arranging a final planning meeting, telling judges Monday he had nothing to do with that act of "terrible savagery."

Imad Yarkas, the main suspect in Spain's case against al Qaeda, described himself as a hardworking father of six who struggled to make ends meet.

He took the stand on Day 2 of the trial of 24 terror suspects — Europe's biggest court case against radical groups with alleged ties to Osama bin Laden's terror network. If convicted, he faces a symbolic sentence of almost 75,000 years in prison — 25 years for each of the nearly 3,000 people killed in the 2001 attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. (AP)

TOGO | FANNING THE FLAMES

HEATED WORDS: A man blows gasoline onto a torch by a roadblock in the Togolese capital, Lome, on Monday. Security forces fought to rein in protesters as vote counting got under way after Sunday's tense presidential election. Key rivals met in Nigeria on Monday and said they'd abide by the results.

Opposition Flays Blair Over Iraq War

LONDON | With less than two weeks before national elections, opposition parties Monday attacked Prime Minister Tony Blair over the Iraq war and questioned his integrity. Blair, bolstered by a new poll giving his Labour Party a 10-point lead, shrugged off the criticism.

The Conservatives, who supported the war, accused Blair of lying to justify the U.S.-led invasion. The Liberal Democrats, who opposed it, called for an official probe of its legality and said public trust in the prime minister was fatally wounded.

"They can call me what they like," said Blair. "Iraq has happened. We should look to the future." ED JOHNSON (AP)

Student Found In River

WASHINGTON | Investigators believe a University of Maryland student who had been missing more than a week most likely drowned.

A passerby found the body of Arvin Sharma, 22, in the Anacostia River on Monday, near the 11th Street Bridge. Police said the body apparently was in the water for days.

Police said Sharma was last seen with a group of friends at a nightclub called Club Lime in Southwest Washington in the early hours of April 16.

Ashish Sharma questioned whether his brother would leave on his own.

"He wouldn't just leave the place by himself — there's no way to get a cab, there's no Metro stops," he said of the club, which is located near the proposed site of a new baseball stadium for the Washington Nationals. LISA GODDARD (AP)

Identity Theft at D.C. Blockbuster

WASHINGTON | A Blockbuster video store clerk was indicted on charges of stealing customers' identities and going on a shopping spree that included buying a Mercedes, prosecutors said Monday.

Miles N. Holloman worked at the 16th and P streets branch in Northwest Washington between February and September of 2003. During that time, he allegedly stole the names, credit card numbers, Social Security numbers and other information provided by customers applying for Blockbuster membership cards. (AP)

Police Seek Clues in Teen's Murder

WASHINGTON | Homicide detectives took to the streets of Southeast D.C. Monday, hoping to find witnesses or other information about the drive-by shooting of a Ballou High School student over the weekend.

Police said Lavelle K. Jones, 16, was killed early Sunday by a bullet fired into his head from a car in the next lane. Two other teenagers were in the car with Jones, but Lt. William Farr said neither has been able to provide a good description of the gunman or the vehicle.

Ballou is a school with more than its share of problems, including a student shot dead in a hallway in 2004. "All these kids are dying and it's just sad," said Ballou student Latrice Hughes. (AP)

'Sextravaganza' Goes On Despite GOP Objections

RICHMOND, VA. | A sex-education fair sponsored by a pro-choice group went on as planned Monday at George Mason University, despite conservative lawmakers' strident opposition to the event.

The so-called Sextravaganza at the Fairfax campus featured about 15 groups handing out information about topics such as prevention of sexually transmitted diseases, sexual assault, health examinations and sexual abstinence.

Six Northern Virginia

Republicans questioned the public university's decision to allow the event, sponsored by Pro-Choice Patriots.

Pro-Choice Patriots President Amanda Agan said she was baffled by the reaction to Sextravaganza, and she and others drew comparisons to opposition to "Fahrenheit 9/11" filmmaker Michael Moore's planned appearance last fall, which was canceled after Black and Marshall protested Moore's speaking fees. THIS YEAR I GIVE
FOR MY LIFE!

R. Donald Tomasik

I wanted to write and let you know that I am eternally grateful to you for saving my life! I saw an ad for mobile ultra-sound tests for a year before actually signing up to be tested. I just had a feeling that something wasn't right; my wife kept urging me to spend the $179 and get checked for nothing else but the peace of mind. Boy, am I glad I did, it was found that I had a 5 1/2 centimeter aortic aneurysm. I was able to take my test results to my primary care physician and be referred to a specialist, Doctor Showalter, who's first question was 'how do you know you have an aneurysm?' I showed him my Healthfair test results and he smiled and said, 'those Healthfair screenings probably saved your life!' That was in February 2003 and after a successful surgery, I'm happy to say I'm in good health in 2004 and indebted to Healthfair USA for saving my life! Unfortunately our friend Connie in Vermont didn't have an opportunity to have these inexpensive tests and died of a ruptured aneurysm. We miss her and hope to see Healthfair mobile units all over the country someday. It really is necessary to have these tests since Medicare won't pay for preventative screenings and I couldn't afford to pay the hospital price! Thanks from both Marge and I for your 7 test package, it was truly an investment in my health!

CARE

I am a physician here in Charleston, SC; a very skeptical one at that. I have been seeing your ads in the newspaper of your cardiac and vascular screenings, and have to say I was the first to shout "scam artist". I started getting patients showing me this ad and asking my opinion. Instead of answering them with my first thought, I decided to check into your organization myself and do some research. With the cost of healthcare these days I was very concerned of the legitimacy of your organization. The first thing I decided to do was make an appointment for myself and see it from the inside. I also needed the help of others to compose an even stronger report of findings. I then gathered 11 other family members and colleagues to do your studies. I scheduled various appointments for all of us throughout the month of June. I gave everyone an appointment time and asked them to report back to me of their experience and results. So for 12 of us it was off to the testing sites inside of a bus in various parking lots.

My findings were very impressive! I think your organization is an astounding service to the public! It is so nice to see people like you make this service available to the public. I commend you in this service of screenings you offer at this price, it seems impossible to do this in today's society of medical expenses. The rising cost of healthcare today makes plenty suffer and the conformities of today's managed care makes us all susceptible to the realities of our scope of care. I am now your best supporter and I will happily refer you to all of my patients, and commend you accordingly in the community!

Andersen Settles Lawsuit

Deal comes in class action case over $11B collapse of WorldCom

NEW YORK | Arthur Andersen continued to deny wrongdoing Monday as it settled with WorldCom investors who had accused the company's former outside auditor of failing to protect them from WorldCom's historic $11 billion accounting fraud.

Details of the settlement were not immediately released. U.S. District Judge Denise Cote scheduled a preliminary approval hearing on the settlement for Tuesday and banned each side from discussing its details publicly.

The deal interrupted a trial in its fifth week on the accusations contained in a class action lawsuit brought after WorldCom's 2002 collapse, the largest bankruptcy in U.S. history.

The plaintiffs maintained that

WorldCom's annual financial statements for 1999, 2000 and 2001 contained false statements and that Arthur Andersen issued its audit opinions with an "intent to deceive, manipulate or defraud."

Arthur Andersen insisted through its lawyers that each of its audit opinions from 1999 through 2001 was generated in good faith and with no intent to deceive, manipulate or defraud.

Microsoft Unveils New 'Longhorn' Windows OS

SEATTLE | Microsoft Corp.'s ambitious plan to keep data safe on PCs will make a scaled-down debut in the next release of Windows, though the operating system's most anticipated improvements in graphics appear to mirror what's now available from rival Apple Computer Inc.

The long-delayed Windows upgrade, code-named Longhorn and now expected in December 2006, has been touted as the most significant update to the ubiquitous operating system since Windows 95 launched in 1995.

On Monday, Microsoft Chairman Bill Gates demonstrated Longhorn's new graphics, which include better ways to visualize data, more natural file organization and faster searching.

And though he spent only a few minutes on security in his speech, Gates said it was the most important improvement and had received the most attention by developers. (AP)

Merger Seeks to Create Continent's Largest Oil Refiner

SAN ANTONIO | Valero Energy Corp. plans to acquire Premcor Inc. for $6.9 billion in cash and stock as part of a deal that would create the largest refiner of crude oil in North America, company officials announced Monday.

With the proposed acquisition, Valero will add four refineries and 790,000 barrels per day to its system. It will have total assets of $25 billion and annual revenues of nearly $70 billion, which would rank it No. 15 on the current listing of the Fortune 500. (AP)

Wizards must stop rookie in Game 2 of series

WIZARDS | Andres Nocioni brought his Olympic gold medal to the Chicago Bulls' media day in October, his way of saying that he knows how to play and win important basketball games.

Nocioni made a similar statement in the opener of the Bulls' playoff series with the Washington Wizards with a performance that still had heads shaking in disbelief Monday.

He scored 25 points, three more than his regular-season high. He grabbed 18 rebounds, the most by a rookie in NBA playoff history. And he played every minute of Chicago's 103-94 victory.

"He understood the importance of this time of year. He played in so many big games in Europe, it's not anything new," Bulls general manager John Paxson said Monday.

Nocioni started just 38 of 81 games, averaging 8.4 points and 4.8 rebounds. But he stunned the Wizards with his board-crashing display, letting out a primal scream after nearly every rebound.

"Every night I try to do this job, but sometimes it's your night. Sometimes you can make everything, sometimes you can get every rebound."

Well, not quite, but it almost seemed like it Sunday.

When Nocioni drew a late offensive foul from struggling Washington guard Gilbert Arenas, the crowd at the Untried Center

Andres Nocioni surprised the Wizards with 25 points and 18 rebounds Sunday began to chant his name.

"He hit some shots that he normally doesn't make, and he was feeling it," Washington's Antawn Jamison said Monday. "Our job is to take away that confidence."

Game 2 is Wednesday night in Chicago.

The Wizards must get Arenas, who shot 3-for-19, and Jamison, who was 6-for-15, on task.

"You're allowed to have a bad game when you've been so productive," Bulls guard Duhon said of Arenas, who scored 9 points Sunday. "I expect him to be more assertive and aggressive."

On Monday, an MRI revealed that Kwame Brown's injury is just a bruise to his knee.

He is expected to play in Game 2 of the series. RICK GAND (AP)

Nuggets Still Face a Tall Order

Denver aiming for second victory over San Antonio in series

NBA | Beating the San Antonio Spurs is only going to get tougher for the Denver Nuggets.

"Game 2 is always the hardest game," Nuggets forward Carmelo Anthony said Monday. "We know they'll adjust, and we have to adjust to them as the game goes along."

One of those adjustments for the Spurs will be to make more shots. San Antonio missed 17 straight in the fourth quarter and lost Game 1 of its best-of-seven series 93-87 to Denver on Sunday.

"You got to get to four — we have one and we want to get to two before they get to one," Nuggets forward Kenyon Martin said. "The next three will be as tough as this one was. They're going to try to jump on us early — they need this one."

Martin scored 11 points with nine rebounds and disrupted Tim Duncan on the defensive end. The San Antonio Spurs forward Tim Duncan, right, works the ball against Denver Nuggets forward Kenyon Martin during the first half of Game 1 of the playoff series.

Spurs All-Star power forward couldn't get comfortable after missing a dozen late-season games with a sprained right ankle.

"I'm not going to let him dictate what he wants to do — if I do that, it's going to be a long night," said Martin, who played for New Jersey when the Spurs beat the Nets for their second NBA title in 2003. "I can be a pest. I'm going to hit you, I'm going to push you, I'm going to hold you. I'm going to keep coming. It's the playoffs."

Duncan (18 points, 11 rebounds) missed all seven of his attempts, none farther than 8 feet out.

The Nuggets entered the playoffs playing better than any team in the conference, winning 25 of 29 since the All-Star Game.

Suns Stay Hot in the Playoffs

NBA | Shawn Marion's aching wrist and Amare Stoudemire's low-scoring playoff debut were the dominant subjects a day after the Phoenix Suns unleashed a 3-point barrage to beat the Memphis Grizzlies.

Coach Mike D'Antoni didn't let either issue affect his good humor or his faith in his young team heading into Game 2 of the best-of-seven first-round series on Wednesday night.

Marion sprained his right wrist on a hard foul from Shane Battier in Sunday night's 114-103 triumph over the Grizzlies. He stayed in the game but was wearing a brace and didn't practice on Monday.

"It hurts, man," Marion said. "If it was today, it would be no-go. We'll see how it is in a couple of days."

D'Antoni dismissed the prospect of playing without Marion — who had 26 points and 13 rebounds in the opener.

"I'm not giving him that possibility," D'Antoni joked. "If it's barely broken, he's still going. It's got to be a bone sticking out of his skin."

Blue Jays Fire Hitting Coach

The slumping Toronto Blue Jays fired hitting coach Mike Barnett on Monday and replaced him with first-base coach Mickey Brantley. The Blue Jays are 9-11 after losing seven of eight. They were swept last weekend in Baltimore and outscored 24-7. The Blue Jays scored only 719 runs last year, next-to-last in the AL. They hit .260, which ranked 12th. "This isn't a knee-jerk reaction, it's something we've been watching closely for the last year," general manager J.P. Ricciardi said during a conference call. (AP)

United Off to a Slow Start

MLS champs confident turnaround will occur

UNITED | As ugly as most of D.C. United's 4-3 loss to New England was on Saturday, and as much as the team's offense (can't finish) and defense (young and thin) seem to be struggling, some perspective may be in order even though the MLS champions are winless in their past five matches.

Winning a league in which eight of the 12 teams make the playoffs is about being the best from September through November. Results from the spring rarely register. In fact, United (1-2-1 in MLS play) did not secure a winning regular season record last year until its finale.

"You look at last year, we started the same type of stuff. We were playing good stuff, we were just losing games. The important thing is that we have faith in our play," United midfielder Ben Olsen said.

Prospects are brighter in back, where veteran Brandon Prideaux should start next weekend having recovered from a hamstring injury. But the forwards continue to struggle — neither Alecko Eskandarian or Jaime Moreno has finished from open play in MLS matches this season.

Eskandarian, last year's playoff hero, has had an especially rough start. His scuffed 13th-minute shot on Saturday was the latest of a troubling series of failed scoring chances, and now he has a sore left knee that has delayed his training this week.

"I tell Alecko and the forwards, the goals are going to come sooner or later, so you have to keep working," Moreno said. "Alecko's working hard. I think sometimes you get a little desperate to score goals and you get blocked. You have to relax and he knows that." BRIAN STRAUS

Receiver's agent meets with Gibbs, top picks introduced to media

REDSKINS | The agent for Redskins receiver Rod Gardner met on Monday with coach Joe Gibbs, but there was no immediate resolution to the player's status with the team.

The Redskins granted Gardner permission to seek a trade earlier this offseason. Though several teams expressed interest, no team has agreed to either the Redskins' trade demands or Gardner's contract wishes. He's in the final year of his contract.

Gibbs, who called Monday's meeting positive, said the Redskins would not release Gardner. He also said he expects Gardner to attend the Redskins' May workouts and the June minicamp.

Gardner's agent, Joel Segal, wouldn't comment on whether Gardner would attend those sessions. But he did say his client would play for the Redskins this season, if nothing is resolved.

Segal was at Redskins Park representing one of Washington's first-round draft picks, Auburn quarterback Jason Campbell.

He and Auburn corner Carlos Rogers, the Redskins' first choice and ninth overall, playfully debated yesterday over who got the better of the other one in practices while being introduced to Washington.

Rogers said his nickname, "Cash," came from offensive coordinator Al Borges.

"That comes from picking off balls from Jason in practice," he said, laughing. "But that didn't happen too often. The quarterback wasn't going my way in practice so I didn't get too many."

Kidding aside, Rogers and Campbell were thrilled to be reunited in Washington.

"None of us thought we'd have the opportunity to be on the same team again," Rogers said. (AP)

Rauch, 1-1 with a 2.51 ERA in three starts for New Orleans, will work out of the bullpen.

Horgan had a 21.00 ERA in eight relief appearances for Washington. He allowed six runs in one inning in a 10-5 loss to the Mets on Saturday and was sent down to New Orleans on Sunday. "He hasn't gotten it going yet," manager Frank Robinson said of Horgan. (AP)

Robinson to Speak on Older Workers

WASHINGTON | Washington Nationals manager Frank Robinson, who turns 70 in August, will headline a Senate committee hearing this week on Americans who work past retirement age.

The hearing, to take place in the Senate Select Committee on Aging on Wednesday, will look at ways to encourage the trend and highlight obstacles faced by older workers.

Sen. Herb Kohl of Wisconsin, the panel's ranking Democrat, told The Associated Press he called the hearing to look into ways to ensure that older Americans can keep working if they choose.

"Frank is a great example of what years of experience on the job can give you — a promising baseball team in their inaugural season," said Kohl, who also owns the Milwaukee Bucks basketball team. "Robinson has breathed new life into Washington baseball, and he exemplifies the value that older workers bring to the field." (AP)

Doctors say exercise may be a good way to relieve your asthma

HEALTH | Debbie Kyle of Los Angeles didn't understand why she felt winded and out of shape during workouts. Only 25 years old and fit, she couldn't run on the treadmill without feeling short of breath. Discouraged, she stopped exercising.

After 20 more pounds, she was diagnosed with asthma. But instead of telling Kyle to hang up her running shoes, her doctor encouraged her to start exercising again.

Decades ago, doctors recommended rest for asthma patients. But the conventional wisdom today is that, in most cases, exercise can lessen severity of asthma symptoms and help reduce medication.

Without proper diagnosis, asthmatics may assume they're out of shape and stop exercising. This can set up a vicious cycle, said pulmonary specialist Dr. Guy Soo Hoo. "You don't feel well, so you exercise less, and then you get to the point where you can hardly do anything."

WALK IT OFF: Jaycie Ingersoll said walking helps alleviate her asthma symptoms.

But cardiovascular exercise can alleviate problems, added Soo Hoo. "When cardio endurance improves, you can deliver more oxygen to your muscles," he said. "You can go further before becoming starved for oxygen. You need to breathe less to do the same amount of work."

Dr. Robert Eitches of the University of Los Angeles medical school recommends asthma patients start slow on a workout plan. Cold air can trigger asthma attacks, so morning exercisers may do better indoors. If pollen and smog are bad, avoid outdoor exercise at peak times. Swimming is good for asthmatics, because the air's moist and warm.

With exercise and an inhaler, Kyle has more energy now, she said. "I can do everything now. It's not a problem." JEANNINE STEIN (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Try Not to Hurt Yourself

Injury prevention isn't just for rich professional athletes

INJURIES | After a spring training game, Los Angeles Angels pitcher Matt Hensley does a rotator cuff exercise, gets a soft tissue massage and has his shoulder packed in ice. The treatment isn't pampering; it's part of a program geared to one thing: sports injury prevention.

Adults who exercise may share one thing with the pros: the pain and frustration of an injury. Getting hurt can greatly affect quality of life. Doctor visits, physical therapy treatments, surgery and pain can lead to frustration, especially if exercise is an important part of one's life.

Sports medicine specialists can pass along knowledge of injury prevention. Those who want advice should see a physician, personal trainer or physical therapist who can evaluate their needs and devise a program tailored to their activity.

Books and videos offering conditioning programs can also help.

The big mistake most people make is not progressing slowly, said Dr. William O. Roberts of the American College of Sports Medicine — when couch potatoes hit the gym, they often do too much too fast.

"They're thinking back to when they were in shape and really could do it," he said. "And they think they can do these things without that gradual introduction."

Ignoring injuries can lead to further problems. A tennis player with a shoulder injury may rely more on the elbow or wrist, damaging those.

A strong core, it's believed, can help the body handle the transfer of motion, and core strength is recommended for most activities. Stability balls, and balance boards and blocks train the core, as do yoga and Pilates.

After 27 years, 'Hitchhiker's Guide' lands on big screens

ADAPTATIONS | For more than a quarter-century, "The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy" has entertained audiences in a variety of media — with one notable exception. Until now, the humorous sci-fi adventure has been on the radio, in print, stage, TV and on record, but never made it to the movie screen.

Originally a 1978 BBC Radio series, the irreverent saga of a regular Joe who embarks on an offbeat outer space odyssey inspired five best-selling novels. "Hitchhiker" was adapted into a BBC TV mini-series.

Writer Douglas Adams had hoped to see his creation on the big screen. He wrote two screenplay drafts for Disney before he died of a heart attack in 2001 at age 49.

Friends and family members continued Adams' 20-year mission to turn "Hitchhiker" into a feature film, with many of the author's original ideas for the big screen adaptation intact. Following Adams' death, Karey Kirkpatrick, writer of "Chicken Run," was brought on board to punch up the script. Director Garth Jennings was chosen to helm the project.

ILLOGICAL ALIENS: Warwick Davis, Sam Rockwell and Mos Def engage in interplanetary frolics in the film version of the cult hit "The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy."

"Hitchhiker" retains the central story of Englishman Arthur Dent, who wakes up one morning to discover his house is about to be razed to make way for a highway bypass. Minutes later, his best friend Ford Prefect tells him the Earth is about to be destroyed and the only way to survive the imminent blast is to hitch a ride on a passing spacecraft. Together

Arthur and Ford make major, mostly harmless discoveries about the true nature of the universe with the help of an electronic book known as the Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy.

The classic "Hitchhiker" characters are here. They include the Magrathean planet designer Slartibartfast (Bill Nighy), Marvin the paranoid android (voiced by Alan Rickman) and the bureaucratic bad guys known as the Vogons. Newly added are the Point-of-View gun, which makes the target see things from the shooter's viewpoint, and a cult leader played by John Malkovich.

In casting the film, Jennings sought actors who would best serve the film — including Zooey Deschanel, Mos Def and Martin Freeman, best known for playing Tim on the BBC series "The Office" — rather than marquee names. To him, the title and all it conveys is the star.

"The star of the film is Douglas Adams, and if we've done him any way proud I'll be quite happy," he said. "And if we give people an hour and a half of laughs and thrills and hilarious consequences, then good." ANGELA DAWSON (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

Dave's True Story is more than the sum of its ultra-cool parts

MUSIC | Contemporary jazz albums typically focus on a single instrument — Norah Jones' piano, David Sanborn's saxophone or Branford Marsalis' trumpet, for example.

The New York-based modern jazz trio Dave's True Story, though, seems to recognize the collaborative nature that keeps the genre so fresh. The trio's latest, "Nature," on BePop Records, combines the best efforts of all its contributing artists.

Guitarist/songwriter David Cantor, bassist/producer Jeff Eyrich and vocalist Kelly Flint have a pretty good system: Cantor's tunes are clever without being too cute and feature his own refreshing jazz guitar progressions at their core. Eyrich guides the production with a gentle hand, never allowing the sound to lurch into lounge-like kitsch.

Flint's vocals may lack Jones' breathy soul, but she compensates with an effortless precision that allows her musicians to trade the spotlight.

Behind the trio, Jon Dryden contributes subtle but effective keyboard lines throughout, and Jeff Zucor's Latin-inspired percussion drives the most hummable numbers.

The music is designed to satisfy discriminating jazz traditionalists, but "Chasing the White Line Down" and "Still She Knows" stand out as bluesy ballads with mainstream appeal. "Nature" only proves that when artists share the spotlight, the stage glows a little brighter.

NBC is ready for some football again, but it's a new game

SPORTS | NBC says its re-entry into the business of televising NFL football is not an admission that it was a mistake to walk away eight years ago.

"We never really regretted that decision, simply because of the price," said Randy Falco, president of the NBC Universal Television Group. "It wasn't because we didn't think that it had value, it was just what we thought that it was worth."

That 1997 call made for some quiet weekends at NBC and directly led to the one-year fiasco that was the XFL.

By contrast, NBC's re-emergence as part of the National Football League package in a decision announced last week could be a bargain: If NBC successfully starts a new tradition, it could also halt an alarming slide in prime-time ratings.

Starting with the 2006 season, NBC will broadcast the Sunday night NFL game that in recent years was shown on ESPN. ABC has abandoned "Monday Night Football," with that weekly game shifting to ESPN.

Football's primary value to a network is bringing often-elusive young men to the TV set, a demographic group that advertisers like breweries desperately want. Games are also a strong promotional platform, industry lingo for bombarding viewers with ads showcasing your upcoming programming.

Football is a solid ratings performer, although not a match for giant prime-time hits like "American Idol" or "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation."

NBC has no such hit on Sunday, traditionally the most-watched night of the week. Its fortunes darkened even further last fall when the sudden emergence of "Desperate Housewives" made Sunday a big night for rival ABC.

"If we were in a position with a very strong Sunday night, it would have been very hard for us to make the difficult call and say blow it up and make a new Sunday night," said Falco.

He is looking forward to being back in the game. Particularly on Super Bowl Sundays, television's biggest day of the year; it was tough being on the sidelines, he said.

Or, in his case, away from the sidelines: "I think I'll be able to take my kids to the Super Bowl again."

Afraid to go it alone, she rounds up her guy and gal pals for the trip to the clinic where real-life realities about the disease are played in tandem with raucous gags.

Eve

"Eve" is among many Viacom-owned network shows to address the issue through its 3-year-old "Know HIV/AIDS" initiative. It's a project in partnership with the nonprofit Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation.

In scripted programming, CBS's top drama, "CSI: New York," and long-running "Judging Amy" have featured HIV/AIDS-themed shows this season.

D-Day for 'Baker's Dozen'

War is virtual hell in a game based on real events from WWII

VIDEO GAMES | Before the military had laser-guided missiles or remote-control spy planes, warfare was all about the four "Fs": Find the enemy, fix him with fire, flank him and finish him.

These guiding principles of squad warfare are superbly, and brutally, enforced in "Brothers in Arms: Road to Hill 30" for PlayStation 2, Xbox and PC.

This World War II re-enactment is based on a true story told through the eyes of Sgt. Matt Baker, leader of the 3rd Squad, 502nd Parachute Infantry regiment, 101st Airborne Division.

You begin on the eve of D-Day in occupied Normandy with this

A scene from the brutally realistic video game "Brothers in Arms."

"Baker's Dozen" separated after parachuting into Germany territory.

The PC version packs cinematic, fluid visuals to powerfully recreate the shocking nature of battle. It's a harsh but welcome change from war games which prefer fictional fun to harrowing history.

Case in point: There are no miracle power packs lying around. And it won't take long to die if you don't employ those four Fs.

The interface for issuing squad commands is simple and elegant. With a few clicks of a mouse button, you can direct your troops to give suppressing fire while you sneak around and flank the enemy. If the odds are in your favor, you can even have them charge for hand-to-hand combat, but usually you'll be outnumbered.

As Baker constantly reminds you, "I never asked to be squad leader, but I had no choice."

"Brothers in Arms" is one of the more sobering video games I've played in a while. Whether you're a student of history or war, this in-your-face game is worth a look.

“There were a couple of times I just had to sort of like not cry, and I didn’t ever imagine that I would get like that ...”

— “CSI” star Jorja Fox, on shooting the season finale directed by Quentin Tarantino

Keeping It Clean

Technology lets the viewer be the censor, but at what cost?

BOWDLERIZATION | A provocative documentary, "Bleep: Censoring Hollywood" (10 p.m., AMC) touches on a whole keyboard of hot-button issues.

Co-produced by ABC News, "Bleep" examines the growing business of "clean" versions of Hollywood films. Several years ago, Ray Lines, a Utah man, edited a DVD of "Titanic" for his Mormon neighbors, who objected to the film's brief scenes of nudity and sexual activity.

WATCH WHAT YOU SHOW: Studios object to firms selling censored DVDs.

He would go on to found the company CleanFlicks, offering “family-friendly” versions of popular Hollywood films. In recent years, other companies have followed suit, and another firm, ClearPlay, has developed a DVD player that edits out objectionable content.

The Directors' Guild of America sees this as a blatant violation of copyright laws and a clear theft of intellectual property.

But this controversy may be the tip of the digital iceberg. Soon, almost every home computer will have the ability to alter films.

Studios worry that clean DVDs and self-censoring technology violate copyright laws and may open legal doors that will destroy artists' rights. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Tired of Smoking Cigarettes?

Have you tried to quit on your own, but had trouble succeeding? How about getting some help with quitting by using new low and nicotine-free cigarettes as a step to becoming smoke free. The Lombardi Comprehensive Cancer Center at Georgetown University is seeking participants for a research study that examines this novel approach to quitting smoking. Participants will be assigned to a cigarette group or to a nicotine lozenge group. The lozenge group will be asked to quit smoking during the next 12 weeks. Participants in the cigarette group will smoke the new cigarettes for 6 weeks. They will be asked not to smoke any other brand of cigarette during this time, and then they will be asked to quit smoking for the next 6 weeks. We will provide participants with free cigarettes and lozenges. The study will also look at the health effects of these products. You may be eligible to participate in this study if you are 18-70 years old, already smoking "light" nonmenthol cigarettes, motivated to quit smoking, in good physical and mental health, willing to commit to 12 clinic visits, generally on Friday, over a 14 week period, willing to fast overnight and have your blood drawn. The clinic is located in Washington, D.C., on Wisconsin Avenue, in the Glover Park neighborhood. Parking is available and there is easy Metro Bus access.

Fashion

Men's style trends back toward clothes with a hint of snazz

Men are taking an overdue look in the mirror, and many don't like what they see. How could they have thought wrinkled pleated chinos and shapeless shirts ever counted as fashion — or were even attractive?

Clothes don't quite make the man, but some men are realizing they can help. "We [men] are ready for elegance, quality and luxury," said former Gucci designer Tom Ford, who is launching a line of beauty products that will include some specifically made for men.

"Men want their turn," he said. "People say, 'I wish I lived in the 1950s when everyone got dressed up.' You know, you can do it today."

I'M GONNA GIT YOU, SEERSUCKER: It's fresh, lightweight and has more attitude than when your granddad wore it.

Sharper Image

"Guys need direction, but they are cleaning up," agreed Todd Snyder, J.Crew's vice president of men's design. "That messy look of five years ago is finally going away."

Maybe men are realizing tailored clothes are more flattering, added Bruce Pask, style director at Cargo magazine. "Sloppy just doesn't look as good. The minute you put on a tailored jacket, you just feel better, you feel more successful, you feel smarter," he said.

Wearing one favorite piece encourages men to be more experimental with the rest of their outfit, Snyder said. "Guys need something they know — jeans, chinos, oxfords — that grounds the outfit." Gap hopes to give men such options with a collection called FundaMENTals, complementary and interchangeable combinations of pants, jeans, shorts, blazers, shirts and Ts.

Meanwhile, two "classics," the madras print and seersucker fabric, are making comebacks. Speaking about madras, a patchwork plaid, Paul Wasserman of Haspel said, "It's just going to take off. It's colorful, you can wear it with T-shirts, jeans, khakis. It crosses over to many occasions, and it's very fresh."

He said men are embracing seersucker because it's a lightweight, relaxed fabric used in slimmer silhouettes. "Seersucker has a little more attitude to go with it now," he said.

Pask named an unconstructed cotton blazer as a must-have for this season, adding that a man's fashion identity really comes across in his "third wardrobe," the one he wears to dinner, on a date or to a club. "It's when men want to look good, look sexy and be attractive to others," Pask said.

SAMANTHA CRITCHELL (AP)

BACK ON YOUR BACK: Haspel's madras blazer, top, blends the classic and the casual; so does J.Crew's similar patchwork offering, right.

Are you Depressed?

Have you been diagnosed with Major Depressive Disorder or Depression?

Have you tried at least one prescription anti-depressant medication that didn't work for you?

If you are between 18 and 65 years of age, and have had a poor response to anti-depressant medications in the past, you may qualify to participate in a research study.

If so, you will receive investigational medication and study-related physical exams.

NFL Draft

Washington Post staff writer MARK MASKE was online Monday to discuss the Redskins and the results of the NFL draft | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

How long do you think Patrick Ramsey has? Is this a put-up-or-shut-up year for him?

The recent history of quarterbacks being drafted in the first round says that they start by the beginning of year two, almost without exception. The most notable exception probably will be Philip Rivers next season, unless Drew Brees gets hurt. So Patrick Ramsey, basically, has one season to save his job by taking his team to the playoffs.

It's obvious Joe Gibbs doesn't like the idea of having Ramsey as a starter. Do you know why that is?

He didn't draft him. He didn't make an investment in him, financially, emotionally or from a reputation standpoint. It's a very common situation. If a player isn't "yours," you look at him differently.

The NFL should have a rule forcing pathetic owners to sell the team if a majority of the fans vote "no confidence" in the owner. Why should fans have to put up with Little Danny's ego trips?

There are 800 million reasons why Dan Snyder gets to run the Redskins the way he sees fit. But if you're unhappy about the draft picks that the team made, that's Joe Gibbs, not Dan Snyder.

Why can't the NFL adopt a policy that allows teams to re-sign their own free agents with little penalty against the salary cap? It would prevent the constant changeover and allow teams to build from within.

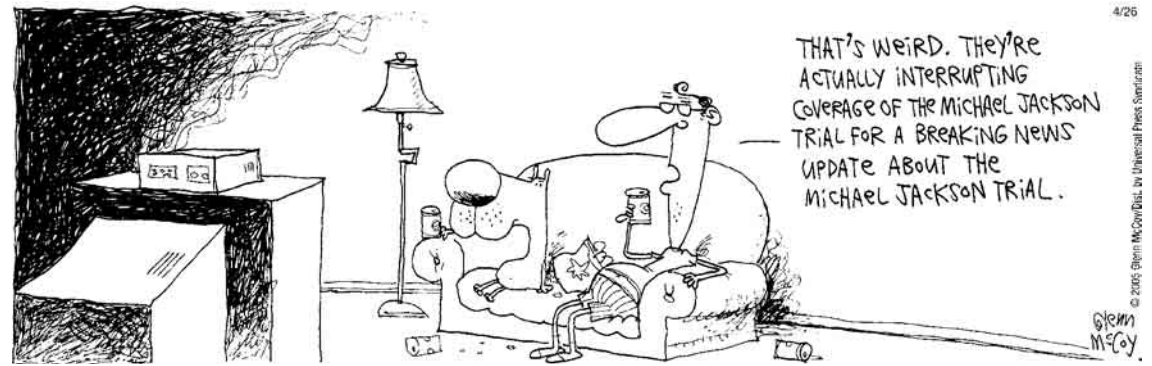

That has been suggested, especially when it comes to players who have been with their teams for a long time. The flip side is that's a step toward perpetuating a system whereby the good teams stay good and the bad teams stay bad. One of the lures of the NFL is that everyone starts the season with a chance to be good, to reach the playoffs and the Super Bowl. It is the anti-baseball in that regard, and the people who run the league like it this way.

Prisoners Story No Surprise

ONLY THE Washington Post or The New York Times could be surprised by a prisoner count going up when the crime rate goes down ("Prisoner Count Up Sharply," April 25). You're either pushing an agenda or you're too stupid to be working in the media. Are you about to push a new social program for third-strikers? How did this become your lead story?

Healthy Snacks at RFK

IN HIS ARTICLE "RFK Stadium Beer and Snacks" (WeekendPass, April 21), Joshua Davidovich overlooked RFK's best food item: a vegetarian hot dog called Lightlife's Smart Franks. Now fans can indulge in a healthful treat instead of greasy fare.

WILL FERRELL will star in a comedy feature film based on the 1970s live-action children's TV series "Land of the Lost," according to the Hollywood Reporter. Adam McKay, a former "SNL" writer who directed Ferrell in "Anchorman," is slated to direct. (EXPRESS)

ELTON JOHN will marry his longtime partner DAVID FURNISH later this year or early next year, his publicist said Monday. Laws recognizing gay civil partnerships come into effect in Britain in December. "We definitely want to do it about the middle of December, probably in Windsor," John was quoted as saying to The Mirror. "But there will be no honeymoon. I'm on tour." John's spokesman said the nuptials may be postponed until 2006. (AP)

In "A Lot Like Love," AMANDA PEET and ASHTON KUTCHER's characters find an instant connection that's not immediately amorous — something Peet says she finds happens in real life. "I personally don't believe in love at first sight," she told reporters at a recent news conference. "I definitely believe in a lot of chemistry and lust at first sight. Maybe I'm just getting too old, but I think it's something that takes work." (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An aggressive stance may get you what you want — but you're not likely to have as many supporters when all is said and done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Success is only a 50/50 proposition — unless you are willing to dig deeper and get more firmly in touch with your own changing feelings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You've been working on a project that has been giving you fits of late. You may well discover a light at the end of the tunnel.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The weather may not suit your plans, but you'll be able to keep the emotional climate bright and sunny despite environmental obstacles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You can satisfy yourself merely by focusing on satisfying someone who really needs you. Sharing and cooperation are invaluable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Someone you know has plans that may require you to keep your wits about you at all times — and watch for unexpected developments during the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Focus on your needs and desires, and you'll learn more about the role you are destined to play during the days and weeks to come.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Spiritual or emotional navigation may be more difficult than expected; those signposts you've been relying on may be out of date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're likely to find yourself engaged in a head-on conflict with someone who is attempting to dominate you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Trust your impulses, and you're sure to uncover unforeseen opportunities that can increase both pleasure and profit.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You're likely to be restless, but your own dedication to one major goal will keep you on the right track when necessary.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An attraction to danger is the keynote for the day. Don't require others to assume the same risks you are willing to take.
